About our Program

Launched in 2013 merging the PhD programs in Agricultural Economics, Mathematical and Statistical Methods for Economic and Social Sciences and Internationalisation of SMEs, the program is structured into the three curricula: Economics and Institutions, Economics and Business and Quantitative Methods for Economics.

Our intensive teaching program (all the courses are taught in english) allows first-year students to acquire a broad set of advanced theoretical and methodological skills, both general and specific to their curriculum.

During their second year, students choose their field of specialization within their curriculum, start working intensively on their research project, spend their visiting period abroad and attend regular seminars held by internationally renowned internal and external faculty.

The third year is entirely dedicated to finalize their research products, which are expected to attain high international standards and publication potential.

Faculty members are highly performing in terms of international publications and are active members of the international academic and research community.

The PhD program is designed to prepare a career in universities, research centres, international organisations and firms.

Program Description

The PhD program integrates the typical competencies in economics and business with mathematical, statistical and econometric tools, to offer a training program that will enable students to carry out high-quality research, as well as work in consultancy and business.

Economics and Business (E&B)

This curriculum will help you sharpening your research skills for a broad range of management studies. Lectures during the first year will provide you with sound theoretical and methodological bases. You will learn how to design and implement researches in different disciplines ranging from accounting to innovation management, from marketing to organization and strategy.

During the second and third year, our faculty will connect you to cutting-edge research opportunities on relevant and timely topics like sustainability, internationalization, digitalization and servitization in large and small and medium enterprises, managerial and family firms, state-owned and no-profit organizations.

Finding your passion will make it easier to learn how to master quantitative and qualitative research methods to deepen your knowledge of the macro, meso and micro conditions underlying firms' competitiveness. Finally, you will be trained to develop and deliver your theoretical, policy and managerial implications to the most prestigious communities of management researchers and practitioners.

PERUGIA

Nicknamed the "University City," Perugia boasts a thriving international student scene. Each year, thousands of Italian and international students flock to the city to attend the Università degli Studi di Perugia, the Università per Stranieri di Perugia, and its many studio and performing arts schools. Unlike the more popular tourist destinations, Italian is heard on every street corner and in every shop, making the city a gem for language students seeking a truly immersive experience. Life quality is extremely high in Perugia: it's located in Umbria, the "Green Heart" of Italy; costs for housing are among the lowest in Italy; eating out is good and affordable. Every night, students gather on the steps of the duomo to eat, drink, and make merry. Studies found that once in Perugia, there is a 99% of chance you wouldn't want to leave.
